

Partnership for Strong Communities Research Associates Program

What is the Research Associates Program?

Partnership for Strong Communities Research Associates Program engages Black, Indigenous, and People of Color (BIPOC) freelance writers and researchers to produce policy and research materials on affordable housing and homelessness in Connecticut. This opportunity offers the benefit of both competitive compensation ($25 per hour) and opportunities to publish in local and statewide news outlets and journals, as well as the Partnership's website.

Research Associates produce original research and writing that furthers the Partnership for Strong Communities' mission to ensure everyone in Connecticut has a safe, stable home that is affordable to them in an equitable community of their choice.

Who is eligible to apply?

Writers and researchers that identify as BIPOC and have an interest in public policy as it relates to affordable housing and housing justice in Connecticut. For more information about the Research Associates Program and examples of current and former Associates' work go to: <https://www.pschoosing.org/research-associates-program>

How to apply

Please email Kayleigh Pratt at Kayleigh@pschoosing.org with a copy of your resume, a short description of why you are interested in participating in the Research Associates Program, and any ideas for original writing or research that you would be interested in exploring through the Research Associates Program.
